

EVENT TERMS AND CONDITIONS

When entering as a participant in an event, the participant admin and or participant agrees to pay all fees as specified by the event pages or determined by the event hosting company.

The participant agrees to participate as much as possible & to not cause any un-accidental harm to the presenter or any of the other participants.

The participant admin and or participant notes that any bodily harm inflicted during the participation of an event is at his or her own risk and the event hosting company or owner of the venue cannot be held liable for any injury or loss.

If the participant cannot attend the event for whichever reason, the return of funds will be solely at the discretion of the event hosting company.

The venue of the event is subject to change, but all participants will be notified of such change.

The event hosting company will not disclose the information of the participant to any third party (not employed by the company) without previous consent by the participant admin and or participant.